MARKETING & COMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT

Emily Darrow  Senior Director of Marketing & Communications
Dear Friends,

This past year, United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region continued to respond to the pandemic crisis which has had profound economic, mental and health effects on our community. As a result of your generosity and support, we were able to help 232,738 people. Through our many partnerships and community collaborations, each dollar leveraged equates to four dollars in impact. From the bottom of our hearts, thank you.

The pandemic disrupted every facet of our lives and especially impacted our community’s most vulnerable households: ALICE households, survivors, veterans, single parents and children. Through our crisis intervention programming, we were able to provide immediate relief and support to students, veterans and low-income families experiencing devastating financial crises. This support enabled them to stay safely and securely housed while they sought employment, training and other opportunities to become financially stable. Unfortunately, hunger continues to ravage our community and, like many other issues, it too was exacerbated by the pandemic. With your help, we were able to support 200 local food pantries and ensured children had food at home and over the weekend when free school lunch was not available.

Through our essential items program, we distributed $350,000 worth of new household, hygiene, PPE and children’s items to families in crisis. To meet the needs in education, United Way invested in comprehensive after school programs, provided tutoring and mentorship opportunities that offer a pathway to graduation and further learning. Due to the extreme mental health crisis, we supported suicide prevention and violence prevention programs for youth and families. Families may also received a discount on their prescriptions through our Family Wize partnership. Working together with our 2,000 plus talented, passionate volunteers, we delivered food, worked with seniors and increased equity in our community. Additionally, we provided access to critical shelter and meals through our Emergency Food and Shelter Program.

Finally, through the Hudson Valley 2-1-1 program United Way was able to offer a free, confidential 24/7/365 human service helpline with trained staff, available in over 200 languages. A call to 211 provided families with resources for housing, food, mental health access, senior care, financial assistance and access to vaccination information. It is the first call that resulted in meaningful help for families in crisis or with human service inquiries. Additionally, we supported 140 special projects that provided food, PPE and essential items to community members affected by COVID as a result of our COVID Response Fund launched at the beginning of the pandemic crisis. While the pandemic remains a concern, we continue to offer imperative resources and supports to the families who call Dutchess and Orange County home. We are ever grateful for your continued support.

We look forward to seeing you at our Community Breakfast on September 14th as we celebrate the annual kickoff of our workplace campaign. Thank you for your important work in impacting and changing lives for the better.

Sincerely,

Jeannie Montano

Meet Andrea

Andrea is a single mother. During the pandemic, she fell ill and needed emergency surgery. Unfortunately, she quickly fell behind on rent due to the unanticipated medical bills. Although she applied for disability, she was aware that the process could take some time and it could be a while before she would receive any payments. Frantic and fearing eviction, she called the 211 helpline and was connected to a United Way funded program that was able to pay her $2,200 back rent and keep her and her children safely housed. She has since returned to work and has been able to pay her rent going forward. Overall, she expressed her gratitude in being able to focus on her healing and wellness after receiving the assistance she needed.

To see more reasons why we give and meet other families, go to www.uwdor.org/success-stories.
Meet George

George is a family man who works at a local grocery store. Tragically, he lost everything in a house fire. His children and parents also lived with him. They experienced smoke inhalation, burns and the trauma of losing all of their belongings. His children were scared and anxious to get back to school. He reached out to his friends and colleagues for help. Fortunately, they directed him to United Way. United Way set up an appointment with George and was able to provide an entire dining set including table and chairs as well as housewares, clothing, hygiene items and school supplies for the children to go back to school. Once the family was settled into his new home, he gave us a call and said, “This is such a huge weight off of my shoulders. It was so important for my family to be around the table together for our Thanksgiving meal. I don't know what I would have done without United Way.”

How Poughkeepsie's Hasbrouck House rose to notoriety behind famous owner
by Anthony P. Musso
For the Poughkeepsie Journal, June 28, 2022

Built in 1885 on the east side of Market Street in the heart of the City of Poughkeepsie as the residence of local attorney and county judge Frank Hasbrouck, the two-and-a-half story, red brick structure remains one of the municipality’s most distinguished buildings. It sits just south of the Amrita Club building on Church Street, which was founded in 1873 as a gathering place for local businessman and professionals. Hasbrouck was a charter member and the first secretary of the prestigious organization.

Born in Poughkeepsie in 1852, Hasbrouck was a descendent of three of the 12 patentees of New Paltz: siblings Abraham and Jean Hasbrouck, and Hugo Freer. He was also a descendent of Baltus Van Kleeck, one of the original settlers in Poughkeepsie.

The house was designed in a Romanesque Revival style by British architect Frederick Clarke Withers, who gained notoriety in Poughkeepsie for previously designing the administration building of the Hudson River State Hospital, St. Paul’s P.E. Church, and Vassar hospital. "The building was the last domestic house that Withers worked on," Jeffway said. "His contract with Hasbrouck and Poughkeepsie-based mason and bricklayer Charles Round stated that he, as architect, had final approval." "Hasbrouck took a keen interest in the house's construction details," said Bill Jeffway, executive director of the Dutchess County Historical Society. "It had the most advanced central heating and plumbing at the time.

The house included several distinctive features, including a recessed front porch with two round-headed arches divided by a spiral column with a molded floral design and a Corinthian capital. The upper floors feature an oriel window, a pentagonal dormer and brownstone windowsills. The house's design and decorative touches, such as a massive first floor fireplace, brick chimney, glazed tiles and oak woodwork throughout, along with some of the finest furnishings available at the time enhanced its interior space.

After graduating from Dutchess County Academy and subsequently Harvard College, Hasbrouck studied law in the office of Poughkeepsie attorney Orlando D. M. Baker. He was admitted to the bar in 1875 and worked for several years in Baker’s office before opening his own practice. In 1875, Hasbrouck was elected to the city’s board of health and the following year he was elected Justice of the Peace for Poughkeepsie. He was appointed city treasurer in 1887 and in 1895 U.S. President Grover Cleveland appointed him Poughkeepsie’s postmaster. Hasbrouck was elected Dutchess County judge in 1907 and served in the position for six years. His Market Street residence was clearly a reflection of Hasbrouck’s stature and wealth in the municipality and he entertained a number of local luminaries while residing there. As trustee, vice president, and eventually president of the Holland Society and a manager of the Sons of the American Revolution, Hasbrouck’s involvement and positions in numerous civic organizations saw the house’s use for both social gatherings and meeting purposes.

In addition to the many civic groups he was active in, Hasbrouck was also a founding member and president of the Apokeepsing Boat Club, regularly hosting meetings at his home.

Hasbrouck died in the house as the result of a stroke on Dec. 18, 1926 and was interred in the Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery. His death generated glowing tributes from numerous businessmen and associates in the legal community, who attended his funeral, which was held at the residence.

During the latter part of the 20th century, the house was transformed into office space for the United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region.

“This unusual Romanesque building in the heart of downtown is part of the architecture along the southern portion of Market Street, which includes Harlow Row and the Adriance Memorial Library,” said City of Poughkeepsie Historian Tom Lawrence. “The Hasbrouck House is homage to the wealth found in Poughkeepsie in the latter half of the 19th century.”

The house was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1982. It is located at 75 Market St., Poughkeepsie.

Thanks you for helping meet needs in 2020-2021
VOLUNTEER: Every hour, every minute you give helps someone in need.
Through our online volunteer portal (volunteer.uwdor.org), United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region makes it easy for individuals and companies to ensure everyone finds their perfect volunteer "match."

Why Volunteer?
Not only is it a great way to give back, but a new study shows that volunteering provides important health benefits. "Volunteering may "provide a sense of purpose ... while helping maintain social networks that are critical as people age," according to a new study noted in Time Magazine's article, "Why Volunteering is Good for Your Mental Health."
In addition, volunteering is "an effective way to cultivate critical business and leadership skills, such as project management, communication, goal-setting and evaluation," according to a Deloitte survey of Fortune 500 HR Managers.

Volunteering Impact in the Community
Last year, we touched the lives of more than 232,000 individuals. Volunteers helped make that difference with 2,259 individuals contributing their time and talent. To continue to support our Dutchess and Orange communities, we are counting on you.

Studies show that volunteer hours, valued at $28.06 per hour for each volunteer, add up and save donor dollars allowing more money to go to much needed services in our community. Last year volunteers contributed almost 30,000 hours with a total economic impact in our community of $841,800.

Want to Volunteer?
Visit our volunteer portal at volunteer.uwdor.org to find the perfect match for you or contact our Community Impact team (ci-inbox@uwdor.org) for special opportunities and our Days of Caring! To help out year-round, email Rebecca Lull (rlull@uwdor.org) for our basic needs distribution program.

Tocqueville Society Members

United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region’s Alexis de Tocqueville Society was formed in March of 1984 to deepen individual understanding of, commitment to, and support of United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region’s work: advancing the common good by creating opportunities for a better life for all. Membership in the Tocqueville Society is granted to individuals or partners who contribute at least $10,000.00 annually to United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region.

Alexis de Tocqueville admired three elements in American society: liberty, equality and the spirit of neighbor helping neighbor. Interested in learning more and making a larger impact? Contact Michelle Nepton at mnepton@uwdor.org or 845-471-1900 ext 3115. There are many giving options including monthly installments to make becoming a member even more accessible.
