Planting seeds for the future through school gardens and education.

"I want to be a farmer when I grow up."
- Anzari, first-grade student in Hudson Valley Seed program

Our partners at Common Ground Farm, Hudson Valley Seed, and Poughkeepsie Farm Project introduce children to healthy eating through school gardens and farm visits. Your donations helped to inspire the wonder that first-grader Anzari experienced at a Hudson Valley Seed Elementary School garden, where she planted a seed and tasted a tomato off the vine for the first time. This inspired her to say that, "I want to be a farmer when I grow up." Throughout the year, this shy and withdrawn first-grader rushed to participate in garden time, gaining self-assurance and confidence. By using school gardens, each seed that is planted helps instill a future of healthy eating habits and foster food literacy for our community's children.
